"MEN'S BETTER WEAR"

There are Others

When big money winners in sports are talked of, the names of Dempsey, Tunney and Ruth usually come first to mind, although there are foreign stars, such as Belmonte, the Spanish bullfighter, and Gama, the Indian wrestler, who far surpass these three famous Americans in yearly earnings. But in the United States there are several stars in other sports who come close to the annual income of Jack and Babe. Tunney's $500,000 in the Chicago (long count) fight put him in a class by himself, and Dempsey made more than a million in his day in the ring; but we are talking about yearly earnings.

I have before me a sports page clipping, the heading of which reads: "Hagen gets $75,000 a year and lots of fun out of golf." Recently I read that Johnny Farrell, United States open champion, had cleaned up $60,000 since he won his title, and also that Joe Kirkwood, Australian short shot wizard, ranked next to "The Hag" over a span of years when it came to earnings from his profession. Ruth's $70,000 a year salary doesn't seem out of proportion now, does it? And I can't help wondering what Sir Walter must think as he reads that Darryl Vance, greatest pitcher of the National league, is holding out for $25,000 a year. Hagen, you see, used to be a pitcher before he took up golf in a serious way. Now he earns three times as much as Vance wants to get.

The Same Natal Days

(CINCINNATI)—Mr. and Mrs. Walter McDonald, of Cincinnati, were married a year ago last August 16th. Their natal days also fall on the same date with a baby daughter, born this past August 16th. All of which simplifies the three family anniversaries greatly as all the birthdays and the wedding anniversaries will hereafter be observed on the same day.

Another strange coincidence is that the middle name of the mother and father is Francis. And so, to make the family circle complete, the baby has been named Maryland Francis McDonald.

SPORT NOTES

Should Play Ping-Pong

The Americans haven't got quite used to the grand Canadian sport called hockey yet. Perhaps it is a little too fast for them to follow. One of them, by the name of Harcourt Stronge burst forth in an American paper thusly:

I don't like the name
Of a certain rough game,
The game that they label as hockey;
They knock them so flat
That I really think that The name of the game should be
"hockey."

It's the simplest trick
To trip with a stick
Or trap out a couple of teeth
And the customers roar
If there isn't some gore
Or cause for donating a wreath.
If you want to see speed
And a few people bleed
Just gather an eyeful of hockey;
If you wish to see nice
Semi-murder on ice
Go to see what they should call
"hockey."

Larry Gains Challenges Schmelling

TORONTO—Max Schmelling, Germany's contribution to the ranks of heavyweight contenders, received in the neighborhood of twenty thousand dollars when he knocked out Johnny Risko at Madison Square Garden recently. Larry Gains, Canadian heavyweight champion, while in Europe, knocked Schmelling out in the second round of a bout in Cologne, Germany. In view of that Gains fails to see why he should not be entitled to a bout with Schmelling. Matchmaker Playfair Brown of the Shamrock A.C. is in contact with Gains, but has been unsuccessful in efforts to get Schmelling to come here for a match with Gains. Recently Gains forwarded a challenge to the New York State Athletic Commission, outlining his claims for a bout with Schmelling, and asking the Commission to order the German to meet Gains. In his letter Gains declared his willingness to box Schmelling in any city where the promoters would offer a reasonable purse. Gains, in addition to stopping Schmelling, has often seen him box, and is confident that he can beat him.

Will Try Again

Old Grover Cleveland Alexander, who walked off the field under a cloud at the Yankee Stadium last fall, looking as if he had reached the end of his glorious baseball career, is coming back for more. He wants another shot at the big-time batters before deciding he is getting too far along to work at his mound trade with the youngsters of the day. Alexander has gone south with the Cardinals, a happy veteran, celebrating his 42nd birthday, and his 19th trip to camp as a big leaguer. There never was a better National league pitcher than the veteran Alexander, although many will justify any that Christy Mathewson was his peer. In his big league career he has tossed 364 victories for three teams, the Phils, Cubs and Cards. In his years of toil in the older circuit Alexander has pitched more than 600 games, and very few of them were badly pitched affairs. He never looked quite so weak in his career as he did when he tried to stop Ruth and Gehrig in New York last fall. Alexander holds two National league records and is striving for a few more before he calls it quits.

GRAND NATIONAL HAS RECORD ENTRY

LIVERPOOL.—The Grand National Steeplechase is famous as the most difficult cross-country race in the world and consequently is probably the most uncertain of any sporting event. But this year's Grand National, to be run on Friday, March 22, is exceptionally puzzling. Added to the record large entry is the fact that training programs were seriously interfered with by the severe winter, which resulted in hard-frozen training grounds.

The historic race annually grows greater in value and importance. The 1929 event will be worth well over $60,000. One hundred and twenty horses were allotted weights, and this number was cut only to 104 in the first acceptances. The newly instituted "second forfeits" ten days before the race being the field down to reasonable proportions. Last year, however, out of 42 starters, only two finished—Tipperary Tim, an outsider, and Billy Barton, United States hope who was second after a stumble at the last fence.

The race, as usual, will be over the arduous 4½ miles of the Aintree course, with its difficult water-jumps and fences. It has been run since 1769, and will attract an enormous throng to Liverpool from many parts of the world. Last year great liners at the Mersey docks were turned into extra hotels.

Bright's Boy Favorite
The favorites appear to be Bright's Boy and Master Billie, closely followed by Billy Barton, Great Span and Carfax. Bright's Boy has twice been placed in this great race, but is a doubtful whether he is as good as he was. Further, he is a very much better horse in good going than in the mud. Master Billie, if all goes well, seems certain to start one of the favorites, and rightly so.

Of the three others, however, Billy Barton, Billy Barton last year were the better handicapped than they are now. They owed their prominence to a chapter of accidents to a majority of the other starters, one severe rupture and even if they had stood up clearly to the end of the race would hardly have beaten Tipperary Tim. For Carfax, he is now 12 years old, and so should not be as good as a year ago.

Enter Hero Top Weight
Easter Hero, carrying 175 pounds in the coming race, earned a black mark when he bunched the canal fence last year and brought a great deal of disaster in his train. But he is by no means the first great jumper to make a mistake at Liverpool, and his brilliancy is such that he cannot possibly be left out of the reckoning. Following his farcical failure in the big steeplechase last year, last summer, for which the horse was in no way to blame, he showed his manner of chaser he is by carrying the Prix des Drags in runaway fashion.

Special interest attaches to the race of the oldest of Grand National winners and his stablemate Maguelonne, by reason of the high prices given for them by J. H. Whitney. Big money, however, seldom prevails at Aintree. This was exemplified last year by Tipperary Tim, who, with a tube in his throat, would certainly not have commanded much of a price had he been put up for sale shortly before he triumphed astonishingly in the great race.

Spirit, a former winner, who holds second place in the handicap at Liverpool, has been under a cloud for a month and doubts are entertained as to whether it will be possible to train him.

Tom Leader has had a long and popular experience with what he calls Spirit's "very nasty gummy forelegs" and perhaps he will get the old horse round again. He is not too old to win another National. Anyway he is still a year younger than Master Robert was when he scored at Liverpool. Manifesto, referred to as one of the oldest of Grand National winners was only 11 when he gained his second success, having won the race two seasons previously. The youngest National victors of the past 30 years were Latour II, at five and Ambush II and Ally Sloper at six. The records suggest that nine is the ideal age for a Grand National horse. If Spirit does not run, Leader will still have Bright's Boy, Mount Etna and Grouseback to choose from.

Few Experienced Jockeys
Should the stable have more than one competitor it will be interesting to see which mount is given to the trainer's son, who has no superior over the Liverpool country or for the matter of that, over any other country. When in doubt in the Grand National it is by no means a bad plan to place one's faith in a jockey who has done well over the course. Now that Jack Anthony has retired from racing the only professionals in regular practice who have ridden Grand National winners are young Leader and the two brothers Rees. There seems to be still some uncertainty as to F. B. Rees's mount this year, though he holds a general retainer free from R. Gore's patron, Captain R. F. Norman, whose Lloydie is engaged at Liverpool.

The reasons for the extraordinary popularity of the Grand National, not only in Great Britain, but in America, are not hard to find. As a public spectacle it cannot make much appeal because it is only the trained watcher of races who can follow with any accuracy the riders' colors as they go far away from the stands, out into the country to Becker's Brook and on to the canal turn a mile away. Nor can the general appeal which the race makes be financial for there is no race in the world in which it is so difficult to find the winner.

The cause for its popularity lies in the fact that, as a race, it is unique and as a sporting adventure it has no equal. Such fences as are found at Aintree are found on no other course. The Grand National's four miles 856 yards. It is a race in which not only must the winner be able to jump and stay, and to have pace left at the finish, but he must have unlimited pluck and be as clever at jumping as a cat.

Luck a Big Factor
A horse possessing all the Aintree qualities and others could not win the Grand National unless he were well favored by Aintree style. The most successful rider at Aintree is almost invariably a man who has hunted, for his fences must be set back, and the rider must have an eye to the country. He must also be ready to detect almost instinctively those incidents which may develop into accident. Horses of all shapes and sizes have won this race when their chances on known form seemed to be non-existent. The reason that there is only one National, and ordinary form is not of much value in finding the winner of the contest, the winner and his rider must have luck. The appeal of the race is that it is a supreme test of all those things which the British people, as a race, expect of a horse and man.

The Grand National is a race where the result does not matter so much as the race itself. Will some unknown hunter make all the running, and, after jumping each fence sideways, win easily, as Sunchoi did before the war? Or shall the multitude witness such an exhibition of courage as that of Bright's Boy gave a few years ago when he and his horse, The Bore, fell two fences from the finish, when only he and Shaun Spadah were standing? Mr. Brown broke his collar-bone and his reins, but remounted, completed the course, and finished second. How many starters are injured? Will there be only one, as when Glenside completed the course on three—or was it two—legs in 1917? Or shall the race be as in 1925, when fog obscured the course, and it seemed an eternity before old Sergeant Murphy and the gallant Captain Bonnet came out of the gloom with the race won?

THE SAYINGS AND DOINGS OF MANY PUBLIC MEN

Calvin Coolidge, who no doubt will be asked to be a college president. "We shall fall if we put all our eggs in one basket, and all our efforts into our technical schools and leave unsupported our schools of liberal arts."

Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing. "Actually, every man has his breaking point. It is all a matter of effective temptation, time, place, and circumstance."

Elmer Davis, penetrating observer: "Your modern farmer drives into town in half an hour, over good roads. His father needed three hours to get him team through the mud; but when he got to town, he put money in the bank."

Eugene O'Neill, Jr., an old-fashioned boy: "My father has no equal in contemporary letters. He, Edgar Allan Poe, and Walt Whitman are the three great figures in American literature."

St. John Ervine, a smart-aleck critic: "New York is the Smart Aleck of American cities, the Coney Island of the continent, and judgments and beliefs in it are probably shallower than anywhere else in the world."

Hans Zinsser, M.D.: "The men who devote themselves to medical science in the laboratory are notoriously un-despised. For that reason I hope our beteseres will pick on medical pioneers instead of foreign nobility."

George W. Wickersham, pioneer exponent of world peace: "We used to think that war was the sport of kings. It is in great danger of becoming the toy of democracies."

George Bernard Shaw, writing for his public: "The election of women as governors of America is the most hopeful portent, because the governor of every American state and the actual ruler of every country ought to be a woman."

Alfred Huxley, British writer: "One of the pleasures—or one of the dangers—of foreign travel is that you lose your class consciousness."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, falling to arouse much sympathy: "Women are still the great exploited sex, as you will realize if you study the advertisements which are wholly based on appeals to their vanity."

Sir William Bragg, director of laboratories: "Research is rather like a wild flower which grows in unexpected places and does not take kindly to planting in the garden."

G. P. Bidder, British zoologist: "Our appreciation of dancing, poetry, and jazz music is due to the metabolic rhythm inherited from our flagellate forefathers and shows that we are still flagellates at heart."

William Lyon Phelps, who holds literary opinion: "It is depressing to reflect on the gulf that separates the theatre from the drama."

Efforts to Rule Radio News Field

WASHINGTON.—A plan to gather, edit and disseminate news by radio in conjunction, or competition, with newspapers, has been filed here with the Federal Radio Commission by the National Radio Press Association, said to be underwritten for $1,000,000.

The association is a Delaware corporation, with Charles A. Sloan of New York, president and managing director, and is intended to link radiating stations of the United States in a nationwide system for distributing news direct to the radio audience. The commission is asked to grant the association the 20 intra-continental short-wave channels reserved for press communication and hitherto allocated to the American Publishers' Committee. Hearing has been set for March 26.

H. H. Snelling, the local representative, stated that the organization is the outgrowth of agreement of newspapers in Cleveland not to furnish news to radio stations. The rise of radio, the association's brief declares, has displaced the newspaper as the sole medium for distributing news.

The association proposes to establish short-wave stations in 19 major cities and flash news across the continent which would be distributed locally by individual radio stations. The same channels, it is urged, could be used to regular dispatches for the newspapers during the major period of the day.

Any distribution of press channels which does not take cognizance of the right of radio stations to transmit news fosters a monopoly, the petition charges.

THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR

Speaking of a gathering of medical women, Mrs. G. Howard Ferguson has expressed a hope that will strike a responsive chord in the hearts of the laymen everywhere. "Please do not all be specialists," pleads the Premier's gracious lady; "the old-fashioned family physicians."

Medical science has made great strides in some directions during the past generation. Some of this progress is probably due to the increased tendency to specialize. Yet there is no doubt that the swing has gone too far. How often is the old-fashioned family doctor being succeeded by a young physician who intends to and can fill his predecessor's place in the community life?

Almost every Canadian family can look back at least to one general physician who was a character fit to grace the pages of any book. Had son been flung off the mare's back and broken his arm? Had daughter been stricken by a sudden and severe fever that looked serious? Had grandmother suffered another heart split? Or was mother feeling "a bit under the weather"? Send for the doctor, quick!

He came at all hours of the day or night. You could see his lantern jangling along through the darkness as sure and steady as the doctor's self. Then what a general sign of relief when he crossed the threshold: "It's all right—now—the doctor's here."

He brought whole generations into the world, and so he knew the strength and weakness of them all. His remedies may not have been as scientific as the present kind. They had only one merit—they worked. But he was no miracle man. If the time had come when he could do no more he would kindly but clearly tell you to make a will and send for the minister. And if there was yet hope he was not himself above calling upon Almighty God for help.

People told the doctor things they hesitated to tell the minister. He not only mended bones, but helped to straighten out domestic squabbles. There was less insanity in his day. He didn't know anything about "mental complexes," but he knew the value of getting folks to unburden their hearts and minds. He knew the good and bad in countless lives—yet his never-failing store of news was always of the kind that cheers.

He had one weakness. He would keep Scottish consciences uneasy by his laxity in sending bills. Then, if haltingly reminded of his oversight, he was likely as not to become irritable and break forth: "What's the matter with you, anyway? Do you think I'm going to forget you?"

Perhaps he cannot be replaced by a generation reared in the scent of gasoline instead of the pungent, clean aroma of living horsehide. But the secret of his success is worth regarding. Patients were never just "cases" in his day. Life was not so crowded; yet he helped to make it fuller. —Toronto Globe.

Last week Mr. E. W. R. Lambert, who has been on the invalid list, left for Calgary to undergo a medical operation. Mr. Lambert's many friends will be glad to learn that the operation has been successful, and he felt that his shorter period has passed, and that after a period of convalescence, he soon will be able to return home. Mrs. Lambert is at Calgary, but is expected home within a few days.

Keen regret was expressed on a slide when the death of Field Marshal Foch was announced. His marvellous business and strategic ability did much to perfect the plans of the allies, and his memory will always be remembered with affection by those who served France, and by their relatives at home. The flag at the Memorial Hall is flying at half mast.

Louis George Phillips, who has been manager of the Kins Edward Hotel since Frank Miller resigned as manager, has resigned and left on Sunday for Calgary, where he will be able to keep in touch with his old acquaintances in the Turner Valley. Louis was very popular both in Strathmore and Carleton Place, and his many friends will miss him in all kinds of good fun in the Brunch Club.

Mrs. George F. Kearns, who was on the invalid list is once more back on duty.

The Fremonts have proved a very pleasant function, though not as large as attended as the Fremonts deserved. There were two reasons for this, first, that Lent is not yet over and secondly that this is an exceptionally fair week in Strathmore. The Memorial Hall was very tastefully decorated. A particularly nice supper was served by the Fire Ladies, and all those present enjoyed themselves immensely.

Rev. Mr. Brundage, Ayresmore, will preach at Namaka, Cheadle and Strathmore on Sunday, March 24th, in the United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Perry had at their guest over the week end, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McGill, of Empress, Alberta.

Mrs. T. Wallace returned with her guest, and is spending the week in Empress.

Mrs. N. MacDonald was a Calgary visitor Tuesday.

Mr. Jas. Gunn has returned to Strathmore from a most enjoyable trip to Scotland, where he has visited for the past three months.

Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson, of Red Deer were in town on Saturday, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anderson. George was enroute to Carden, and reports the prospects wonderfully good in the Red Deer district, where they have an abundance of moisture to start the season.

Dick Newmeyer made his first trip in the Calgary-Strathmore trucking service on Monday. This is the first time Dick. Oh, boy!

Frank Miller, of Carleton Place, was in town on Saturday, but Constable Wallace did not learn of his arrival until after he had again "vamosos" back to the northern wilds.

DIAMOND MERCHANTS - CALGARY

A very successful St. Patrick's Tea arranged by the ladies of the St. Patrick's Guild, was held Saturday last in the Sample Room of the Kins Edward Hotel.

Mrs. Spence Hughes and Mr. Gladys Hughes arranged three tables of Bridge Thursday evening last when a very happy evening was enjoyed. Mrs. J. VanTighem was the lucky winner of the first prize, while the consolation was awarded to Mrs. N. Donald. Those present were Mesdames VanTighem, Whiteside, Perry, McSherron, Hirtle, Springthorpe, Sir Moore, Miss Folt and McDonald, Jones, Strathmore, Sorenson and Mrs. A. Moore.

On Saturday evening last Mrs. R. Newmeyer entertained twelve girls in honor of her daughter, Margaret's birthday. The evening was spent in cards and other games. At midday a very dainty lunch was served by the hostess. The birthday cake formed the centerpiece for the table. Most lovely gifts were received, while the Miss Gordon and Miss Smith are now residing at the Strathmore Hotel.

The Ladies Aid of the United Church held a very successful meeting at the home of Mrs. Bray last week. (Continued on Page Five)

Dr. J. W. Giffen accompanied the bride to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guild, was held Saturday last in the Sample Room of the Kins Edward Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Pierson have returned from a very delightful holiday of three months spent in California. They returned all the way back going and coming, and report the roads in good condition. Mrs. Pierson is remaining a few weeks longer in the south, returning to her home later.

Do not miss the Shakespearean evening Friday, March 22. See program in this issue.

A community social evening arranged in honor of Mr. and Mrs. VanTighem will be held in the Memorial Hall Thursday, March 21. Admission by invitation only.

ROSEBUD

John, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Shultz, met with a painful accident at Grasswood School last Friday when he fell from a trestle and broke his arm at the elbow, the bones being splinted on either side of the joint. He is in Calgary under the care of Dr. Macdonald.

The food sale given by the United Church Ladies Aid was a great success, about forty dollars being made.

A special meeting of the O.E.S. will cupied by the Gros brothers.

ROCKYFORD

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kottenbach and family are moving back for the summer to their ranch north of Rockyford after spending the winter in Calgary.
Auctioneer Prater conducted a very successful sale of farm equipment and household goods at the former home of W. P. and R. Riley, who have disposed of their farms to Mr. C. Bruggeman and Mr. R. Vercautem.

Our town is fortunate in having a marceller here permanently now, Miss M. Smith has her parlor in Mr. Mc-Guire's office and the ladies can get in touch with her at any time by a private phone in the office, or at 27 in the evenings.

Miss Lillian Tommes returned Friday, to resume her position at the drug store.

Miss McGuire, Mrs. Poole and Mrs.
McGuire were joint hostesses for the Rockyford Ladies Club which met at the Rectory Thursday afternoon. A large number were present, and Mrs.
Tuppe, the president, took the chair.
After the untolded discussion of the proposed Baker School Bill took place.
Mrs. Black gave a most instructive and interesting talk on the General ada today and, properly developed in Alberta, it would, within a comparatively short time, make more new wealth for the people of this province each year than is obtained from all the grain grown in present.

That statement being true, it is certainly worth while because grain crops in Alberta in 1927 produced $115,000,000, and it would be more in 1928.

Suppose, for example, the 1928 crop of grain in Alberta could have been sold; the farmers would get no money and it would be a dead loss.
In other words, grain only becomes wealth by sale on a large scale. And who buys all that grain? It is an army of consumers scattered all over the world who buy that grain and pay for it, more often than not, one cent at a time.

The Consumers Pay
It is the elevator companies, the banks, the operators on the grain exchanges, the millers, the bakers, etc., who buy that grain, at least for the present. All these merely handle the grain on its way to the millions of consumers—the people who pay for it and actually eat it for nourishment.
If the consumers were not ultimately going to eat and pay for that grain, all the intermediaries, the millers, the bakers, etc., would never be interested in taking it off the farmers' hands.
Put in other words, it is the ultimate consumer—the money which pays the farmer in Alberta for the grain he grew and sold on the market.

But consider now who are the people who make up tourist traffic.
Tourists are no other than that part of that same scattered army of consumers in other lands who pay for the grain of the Alberta farmer.

Spend Money Here
In this case, however, they come into the province by railway, motor car, or flying machine, bringing their cash with them and paying on the spot for any grain, meat, butter, milk, eggs, vegetables, candies or other foodstuffs required by them or for any merchandise or service of any kind which they get while in Alberta. No one of them can spend less than several dollars unless he or she stays only a few hours in the province.

Many of them buy hundreds of dollars worth of goods and service before they leave and the money which they pay is just as good and better—because it is spot cash—than if they had stayed at home and had the people of Alberta send the goods down to them.

Rightly considered, a tourist or visitor is none other than a consumer, a buyer who would not be buying in Alberta unless he had for some reason come on a trip here. It is obvious that he is a very welcome person indeed and farmers in particular should recognize this more than anyone else because whatever else he does, he must eat and pay for some of the foodstuffs which the farmers are producing.

Helps the Farmers Farmers then must be and are interested in tourist traffic in a money way. They may not, of course, see the tourist whose money they get.
They probably sell their produce to the merchant in the city or town who sells it to the tourist and gets the money with which to pay the farmer.
That, however, makes it none the less the tourist who pays the farmer.

Strathmore Locals

Mrs. Evans, of Camrose, with her daughter, were guests of Mr. and Mrs.
E. Whiteside a couple of days this week, returning Wednesday to their home.

A meeting of those interested forming a Lawn Bowling Club was held with A. Reisinger presiding. A committee was appointed to ascertain where suitable grounds might be obtained. T. L. Chamberlain and Jack Bennett are both quite positive that the prospects could not be brighter for a successful organization. It is also proposed to have a quilt pitch in addition. T. L. Chamberlain is quite certain that there are all kinds of affinity lying dormant that could go out and make Jean Kimmet's Standard players look foolish. "Why," said he,
"Kimmet thinks that Jim Swanson is a star, and honest to goodness we have several boys going to school who can play that bird Swanson to a standstill." Another meeting will be held on Wednesday night, at the Town Hall. All interested are invited.

A shadow was cast over the Namaka district Tuesday afternoon when word was received that Mr. Wm. Marshall had passed away that afternoon in the Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary.
Mr. Marshall had been indisposed for a few days, but his condition was not considered serious till the end of the week, when he was conveyed by ambulance to the Calgary hospital. He was given every possible attention, but the untiring efforts of the doctors and nurses proved unavailing. Mr.
Marshall was born in Haldenore, Scotland, March 15th, 1861, and lived there until the Spring of 1906, when he took up residence on his farm two and a half miles north-east of Namaka.
He was, therefore, one of the pioneers of the district, there being only a few other residents at that time. He is survived by an aged aunt in Scotland several nieces, Mrs. Alexander, of Victoria, B.C., Mrs. Murray, of Provost, Alta., and nieces, Mr. John Watson, of Peace River Crossing, Mr. Walter Watson, of Provost, Alta., and Robert Marshall, of Vancouver, B.C. His residence in the community he has won a large circle of friends by his happy, congenial disposition, not only the immediate district, but the whole province will feel the loss of such a highly esteemed citizen.

It is all-weather main highways in the province and across Canada which are needed to properly build the lucrative tourist trade for farmers and all others in Alberta. The trade prospects are so large and close at hand that the tourist will very rapidly repay all capital invested in main highways.
The farmers cannot go wrong in urging the provincial government to proceed with a large main highway program.—Good Roads Magazine.

HEARD ON THE STREET

Wife to husband: "Listen, dear, lend me $20, but only give me ten of it. Then as I owe you ten ask you owe me ten we'll call it square!"

One day a gentleman who was very homely and hairy called to see a friend and found only the little daughter in the drawing room.

He tried to engage her in conversation, but she would not answer until at length he said:

"Perhaps, my dear, you don't know who I am?"

"Oh, yes, I do," she replied. "I gave you a bun at the zoo—and you naughty man, you hadn't any clothes on."

The girl who sued a Pennsylvania man for breaking three of her ribs while hugging her ought to be glad they weren't necking.

Smithy was seen to come out of the Calgary postoffice reading a letter. He looked mighty alarmed and, when he met his friend, Tony Grogan, the latter interrogated him.

Tony: "You look as though you were in trouble."

Smithy: "Yes, I've just received this letter from a man telling me that I don't quit taking his wife out at nights, he is going to shoot me."

Tony: "Well, darn it, why don't you quit?"

Smithy: "That's my trouble. The blooming bouncer didn't sign his name."

Eleven o'clock had boomed out from the old church across the way, reminding Mr. and Mrs. Nags that the hour of retiring had come round once again.

As usual, Nags performed his night routine. He poked out the fire, closed the windows, made fast their safety catches, locked the doors, turned out the lights, and finally with a long drawn sigh of relief, made his way slowly upstairs.

A creaking floor-board awoke his sleeping wife.

"Join," she said sleepily, "are you sure everything is all right? Every thing shut up for the night?"

"Yes, dear," he answered fervently. "Everything I can shut up."

The Telephone Girl
The telephone girl sits in her chair. And listens to voices from everywhere. She knows all the gossip, she knows all the news.

She knows all who are happy and who are blue. She knows all our sorrows, she knows all our strife.

She knows every man who talks mean to his wife. She knows every time we are out with the boys.

And, Oh, Day! She knows a lot!

On a trip across the Atlantic one of those especially officious ladies who are always doing something up, approached Jim Gunn reclining in a deck chair.

"We are getting up a game of bridge between the married men and women," she said.

"You've made a mistake, lady," replied Jim. "I am not married. I'm sea-sick."

When Jim Swanson was in Calgary the other day, a stranger stopped him and asked, "Could you oblige me with a match?" Silently Jim handed over a box which the stranger took and examined with curious interest.

"My friend," he said, "I have a bit of good news for you. I see you use our matches, and my firm has authorized me to hand exhibits to every man meet who produces one of these boxes so there's your money." He turned away leaving the astonished Jim staring at his windfall; but he hadn't come far when he heard the other shouting for him to stop. "Hey!" said Jim as he came up, "I thought there was a catch in it—you're awa' wi' my matches."

"Everyone bring something," said John Vermont, "so we'll have a real blow-out."

So the Bulgarian brought his own glass and the Scotchman brought his brother.

Remember the Day?
Do you remember way back when (say thirty, forty years)?

You never saw your sweetheart's limbs. But judged her by her ears.

The kids were washed each Saturday night. Their daddy cut their hair; Their aunt was cut from their Uncle's pants.

And they wore no underwear. The women padded, but did not paint. Nor smoke, nor drink, nor vote.

The men wore boots and little stiff hats. And whiskers like a goat.

Not a root had appendicitis. Nor thought of buying glands; The butcher gave his liver away.

But oh, you for his hands. You never needed a bank account. Your beer gave six per cent.

There was the days of real sport! A sailor, who had the misfortune of having an impediment in his speech, noticed that the cook had fallen overboard.

He endeavored to explain what had happened to the captain, who finally learned that the unlucky cook was now fully twenty miles away from the ship.

Teacher: "Now then Vincent, give me the names of some of the stars." Vincent: "Football or film, Miss?"

Cora: "Why did Muriel insist on being married in an aeroplane?" Edna: "Well, she's so convinced that she thought no man on earth was good enough for her."

Barclay Kipling often gets heartily sick of hearing some of his own songs and poems. On one occasion, while out walking with a friend, he heard a general organ roll out one of his South African War ballads. "The Abandoned Beggar," long after the whole thing was over.

His companion made some comment to which the poet replied, "Do you know, if it was not suicide, I'd like to murder the man who wrote that."

Misses (engaging maid): "Now, Nora, sometimes I seem to be a bit brusque and overly frank, but you needn't mind."

Nora: "Oh, don't let that bother you, ma'am—you know I'm the same way."

A former vicar of a country parish was a gentleman distinguished for his learning and for the position he took at Cambridge. One day a visitor to the village got into conversation with one of the parishioners, and the talk turned to the vicar.

"Your clergyman," said the visitor, "is a very able man. Why, he is a Wrangler."

"I never heard that," was the reply by the villager, "but his mistress is."

"Oh, Alice, my patient has just proposed to me."

"And another delicious spell, did he?"

Tom: "Well, Jim, I can tell you're a married man, all right. No more holes in your socks."

Jim: "No, sir. One of the first things my wife taught me was how to darn 'em."

Tommy Hodge, who had been apprenticed to Farmer Hicks, had not proved what might be called a conspicuous success and so when Mr. Hodge came along one day to ask what progress the lad was making, the old farmer looked dubious.

"Well," said he, "don't as I want to discourage your son, neither. He don't do nothing wrong—nor nothing at all if he can help it. But I will say that, in my opinion, if your son had another hand I'd want another pocket to put it in."

Three of Mrs. J. Brander's music pupils took the Toronto Conservatory of Music Theory Examinations in February, and the results are most pleasing to teacher and pupils, as they all passed with first class honors. Miss Marjorie Shaw took the Primary Theory, Miss Ruth Weidman and Miss Anderson took Elementary Theory.

Miss Muriel Henderson, who is an advanced student of music, under Miss Williams, in Calgary, passed the examination in History of Music with first class honors and counterpoint with honors.

The Misses Lena and Emma Dick of Carleton Place, Ontario, motored to Langdon on Saturday and visited at the home of their sister, Mrs. G. Wilney.

Helen Armstrong was eleven years old last week, and celebrated the event with birthday party on Saturday, about fifteen children enjoying themselves with games and St. Patrick cake.

Miss J. McLeod, of Calgary, spent the week end with Mrs. W. Smith.

Miss Helen Marshall came from Calgary Saturday to visit her mother till Sunday.

Miss Nellie Barron and Miss Helen Scott were home from their schools at Ponoka and Innisfail for the week end.

The I.O.O.F. presented their play "A Poor Married Man" to a packed house on Friday evening, and every body says it was one of the best plays ever given in Langdon. The actors were Mrs. W. Branton, Mrs. W. Smith, Miss Marjorie Shaw, Miss Victoria Barron, Boyd McIntyre, John Wilson, E. Armstrong and W. Smith. The directors were Mrs. H. W. Jesse and Mrs. W. Alcock. Several young people acted as the "college crowd" in the first act. Delicately arranged furnished the music for the dance.

FRENCH TRADE

FORGING AHEAD

PARIS—France is today the economic enigma of Europe. While thousands of workmen walk the streets of the mining villages of Lorraine, while unemployment is growing in Germany, France is virtually without any unemployment at all.

In the employment office in Paris one finds each morning a line of applicants for work. But officials in charge hasten to explain that the men are merely passing from one job to another and that there is no unemployment in the sense of men being out of work for a continued period.

Government officials explained that France will produce more cheaply than England, that French workmen are less controlled by trade unions, and that transfers are more readily made from one class of employment to another.

Moreover, France has within her borders large bodies of foreign workers, who, it is claimed, form a sort of safety valve in case of any general depression in industry. In the six years ending January 1, 1926, more than 1,200,000 foreign workers entered France from other continental countries, of whom 287,000 were subsequently repatriated. Should the pace of industry slacken, officials assert the situation could be relieved by repatriating some of the foreign workers.

"The occupation of French industrial districts by Germany and the demands for war material," a government expert stated, "indirectly stimulated the development of industry in other parts of France from which we are now benefiting."

"Following the war the restoration of the devastated regions caused a great demand for labor. The falling franc gave an artificial stimulus, as people hastened to buy goods."

A THOUGHT FOR THIS WEEK

—O—
Trials, temptations, disappointments—all these are helps instead of hindrances, if one uses them rightly. They not only test the fiber of character, but strengthen it. Every conquered temptation represents a new fund of moral energy.—James Buckham.

THE FARMER'S RIGHT TO MARKET SOUND

If the corporation which buys ore and makes pig iron and steel—
If the men who buy raw sugar and make the refined product—
If the industries which buy crude rubber and make automobile tires—
If such great organizations of capital which buy raw material and make a finished product—often with only a few major operations and a short period of time—if they have a vested right in seeing that their products are marketed efficiently, then surely the farmer who owns the land, plows the soil, sows the seed or starts an orchard, gives daily attention to the growth of the plants or trees, and finally battles with the elements in a desire to harvest a high quality product—surely he has a vested right in seeing that his products are marketed with a minimum of waste and with the greatest advantage to himself.—George Fiske Johnson.

CANADA FIGHTING FOR SECOND COPPER POSITION

In the growing world demand for copper, which is naturally accompanied by rising prices, great attention has come to centre on Canada's possibilities as a producer of this metal. The Dominion has been making a very steady advance in this respect. In 1927 Canada occupied fifth place among the countries of the world in this regard, and in 1928 rose to fourth place. It is now estimated that by 1934, with the developments under way, the Dominion will rank third among world producers of copper. Other authoritative estimates show Canada, Chile, and Africa grouped with approximately the same production battling for second place after the United States. By that time, according to estimate, the United States will be producing less than 40 per cent of the world's copper as compared with 65 per cent at the present time, and Canada's percentage of world production will have risen to somewhere between 17 and 18 per cent, as compared with less than 5 per cent in 1925.

Mining fields in all parts of the Dominion are proving a constant contribution to Canada's elevation to this new position. Developments at the Frodo Mine of the International Nickel Company of Canada promise to make that concern the greatest individual producer of copper in the Dominion, estimates made figuring on its accounting for more than 6 per cent of the world's copper production five years hence. Important copper properties have been discovered and are being developed in the Rouyn area of Western Quebec, and this province has already become an important producer through the Noranda smelter, which is preparing to double its present capacity of one thousand tons. Development work in Manitoba, involving the expenditure of many millions of dollars upon several properties, forecasts this territory becoming a very heavy contributor in copper in the near future. British Columbia has long been Canada's greatest producer of copper, and additions to plant equipment by the three companies in whose hands production in that territory largely lies, augurs a substantially augmented output from that source.

It is fairly certain now that a copper refinery will be constructed in Eastern Canada, application having already been made to the Federal Government for its incorporation. The vicinity of Quebec has been suggested for its site. To this all copper matter produced by the operations progressing in the Quebec, Ontario, and Manitoba fields and other smelters that may be built in the country east of the Saskatchewan border will be shipped. It is a very significant development.

Latest authoritative estimates forecast a world production of copper amounting to 2,240,000 tons by 1934 as compared with 1,840,000 tons in 1928. Canada's production by that time, it is estimated, will be in the neighborhood of 250,000 tons as compared with about 90,000 tons in 1928. Certainly the outlook is extremely bright for Canada as a producer of

An Outstanding Example of United Effort

CHEVROLET FISHER BODY GENERAL MOTORS Combined to produce this Car

NO single organization could have produced such a car as this Outstanding Chevrolet . . . or offered it at such sensationally low price.

It is an outstanding example of the results of united effort.

The vast resources of Chevrolet, Fisher Body and General Motors were brought to bear on the problem of bringing six-cylinder quality, performance and prestige into the field of the low-priced car.

And the result is the Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History . . . a car of beauty and engineering excellence . . . a Six, in the price range of the four.

You do not know car values until you have inspected this amazing Chevrolet. C-14-2-192

A Word from the Publisher about advertising

The products you see consistently advertised in The Strathmore Standard are worthy of your confidence.

It takes two things to make a consistent advertiser. One is a strong conviction that he has a product that will hold its place in public favor despite competition. The other is actual proof of that—the increasing popularity of his product.

If his product will not stand the test of comparison he would simply be throwing his advertising investment away. If the buying public rejects his product after it has been offered in advertising he has thrown his advertising investment away.

That's why the manufacturer who advertises his merchandise consistently is very sure of his quality—and why you may be sure of it, too.

Read the advertising here in The Strathmore Standard—it will guide you to the buying of worthy merchandise.
